*View and Be Viewed

Have you ever submitted entries to an exhibit and, after the results are announced, wondered what the rest of the field was like? Which entries were not selected vs those that were?

Darkroom Gallery exhibits have a feature that makes this possible, for those that are willing to share their entries with other submitters, you will be able to see all entries from others in that exhibit who are also willing to share. The idea is to help submitters gain inspiration, motivation, and to reflect on your Juror's perspective. The review period is limited to the date the results are announced through the date the exhibit opens. Once the results are announced, there is no changing your mind about participating. This is critical for maintain fairness so don't even ask.
